Our speaker - Professor Chloe Munro AO

The Cambridge Society is delighted to announce that our speaker for our Annual Dinner is an influential leader in industries that have a profound impact on all our lives, and about which many of us know little. Chloe Munro AO is joining the dots between infrastructure, finance, energy and climate change.

Chloe was part of the important Finkel Review into the future security of electricity in Australia and Chair of the Australian Energy Market Operator Expert Panel that reviewed the Finkel report. Chloe was well placed to make recommendations for the future of utilities in Australia as a former Chair of both the Clean Energy Regulator and the National Water Commission. Chloe joins the dots as she has also been Secretary for the Department of Primary Industries, Deputy Secretary of Treasury and Finance and an Executive Director at Telstra. This remarkable woman, winner of the Centenary Medal for outstanding contribution to public administration, is a director of NPP Australia (which works to build an improved payments platform in the banking industry), and finds time to Chair a contemporary dance company. Chloe holds a Masters degree in Mathematics and Philosophy from Cambridge and an MBA from the University of Westminster. Chloe is now a professorial fellow at Monash University.
